Council approves new police office

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden council has approved construction of a downtown community police office, paving the way for Constable Mark McMaster to be on duty by the July long weekend.

In a split vote last Thursday, council decided to pay for a new building rather than renting space.

Councillor Lewis Stevens, Deputy-Reeve Mike Maher and Reeve Bern Berry supported a motion to build, while councillors Bob Sisson and Verne Graham recommended renting space until the effectiveness of community policing could be evaluated.

The Minden Kinsmen Club has offered to erect the frame of the building which will cut several thousand dollars from the total cost.

Community policing committee members Doug Campbell and Jerry Jordan presented the blueprints of the building to council.

Campbell said that in order to have McMaster on the beat by the start of the Canada Day weekend, council would have to make a decision right away.

"It's bullet-biting time," said Campbell. "We have to either say yea or nea."

Maher said there are several aspects of the program which are still unclear.

He referred to a May 20 issue of The Times, which showed McMaster on duty in Minden during the May long-weekend, and said he understood that the officer was using Campbell's house in Hyland Gate Estates. He then referred to a June 3 article which said McMaster could not begin his duties in the village until an office was located, and asked Campbell to explain the change.

Campbell said McMaster was placed on duty in Minden for the long-weekend while Staff Sergeant Bill Elliott was on leave. When Elliott returned, he explained to Campbell that community policing could not begin until the municipality had provided an office.

"He showed me the rules of the game," said Campbell.

Maher also raised concerns about the (more on page 3)

County will need new by-law for stores to open on Sunday

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The province is once again shuffling the responsibility for Sunday shopping to the municipalities, but this time Haliburton County will not be allowed to sit back and do nothing.

Earlier this month, Ontario Solicitor General Mike Farnan announced that the Retail Business Holidays Act, which requires most retail businesses in Ontario to close on Sundays and holidays, would be amended to provide an exemption for tourism-dependant businesses.

This exemption will be administered by municipalities, which must pass a by-law to allow businesses to operate on Sundays and holidays.

The proposed tourism exemption replaces the section of the Act which granted virtually unrestricted powers to municipalities in 1989.

In areas with two-tiers of local government, the responsibility for administering Sunday shopping falls to the more senior level. Locally, this means the by-law will have to be passed by County Council, not the individual municipalities.

And in drafting the by-law, the (more on page 16)

OPP charge Enduro riders

Police laid numerous charges against participants of the annual Rockcliffe Enduro 100 motorcycle race on Saturday, angering race organizers.

Officers from the Minden OPP detachment set up a check point at Highway 118 and the North Road, and stopped riders at they point where the race course crosses the highway.

Constable Mike Maybee, one of the officers at the check point, said police inspected the motorcycles to see if they were legal for highway use.

"Those riders with illegal motorcycles were issued tickets and told to stay off the road," said Maybee. "A lot of them were legal, and continued with the race."

Maybee didn't a complete list of the charges when contacted at his home Saturday night, but he estimated the numbers to be between 10 and 25.

One of the conditions of entering the Rockcliffe Enduro, is that the motorcycles be legal for highway use. Race organizers apparently warned riders that police would be checking the bikes.

Maybee said the location of the check point was chosen because it was the

Bubbly personality

CHACE Day Care in Minden was the scene of a great party last Wednesday as the centre celebrated its fourth birthday. Blowing soap bubbles was just one of many activities which amused the guests. Please see page 13.

Strong support for new housing complex

Staanworth Non-Profit Housing Corporation has received strong community support for its proposed supportive housing complex in Minden.

The corporation has submitted an application to the Ministry to Housing to build a 36-unit, $3.5 million, project on Parkside Crescent, across from Staunworth Terrace.

As part of the application process, Staunworth solicited support from a variety of community groups and agencies.

Gerry Rome, a member of corporation's board of directors, says there was no problem finding support for the project in the community.

"We are quite pleased with the response," he said. "People were very receptive. If we'd had more time, we could have gotten more responses without any arm twisting."

Among the groups who issued letters of support were the municipalities of Stanhope, Lutterworth and Minden, the County of Haliburton, three local churches and five service clubs. Letters were also submitted by 14 individuals.

Rome says this is the first time the ministry has asked for evidence of community support when considering an application from the corporation.

The supportive housing complex, which will be called Staunworth Manor, is the fourth project undertaken by the corporation.

They have previously built two senior apartment buildings and are in the process of building 20 non-profit townhouses.

Staanworth Manor will accommodate 42 residents in one and two-bedroom apartments. A large variety of services will be on hand at the facility including medical, homemaker, attendant care and meal services.

Rome describes the accommodation offered by the Manor as being a step between the independent seniors' apartments found in the other Staunworth buildings and the level of care at Hyland Crest home for the aged.

If approved this will be the first supportive housing project in Haliburton County. The concept of supportive housing in the county was among the recommendations of the recently completed health, housing and social service needs study.

Kinsmen offer to help build police office amount of time McMaster could devote to patrolling the village once community policing is established.

He said Haliburton Village's community-based officer, Ron Buchanan, is only able to spend one hour on the street during each 10 hour shift because of the amount of office work required.

"I'm committed to community policing, and I've been in favour of it from day one," said Maher. "But it's difficult to put out this expenditure, wondering if we're opening the door to have a man downtown one hour out of 10, when we already have a police station in this municipality."

Campbell said McMaster will be assigned exclusively to Minden Village and the officer's time away from foot patrol will be spent investigating crimes. "As the need for investigation goes down, the time on the beat goes up," said Campbell.

However Councillor Graham said McMaster could still be called to a situation outside the village. "The constable in Haliburton is not exclusive to Haliburton," he said. "If he's called to Wilberforce, he goes."

But Campbell said McMaster would not be the first officer called to a situation outside the village and would only go if back-up were needed.

Graham said the details of community policing are still too vague to justify the expenditure of a new building.

"Nothing is concrete," he said. "I hate to be pushed on this building when we don't know our finances well enough to say we can afford it." He suggested that council temporarily rent space for McMaster until more of the specific details are known.

Reeve Berry asked whether the design of the building would accommodate other uses in case the province decided to move away from the concept of community policing sometime in the future.

Campbell said the design incorporates as much flexibility as possible, and would be ideal for a small business or a municipal office for the utilities department.

Council Stevens urged council to make a decision on the issue and make up their minds whether they wanted the building or not.

Maher re-iterated his support for community policing, but said council has the right raise concerns about the move.

"I don't want to be pressured to putting a white elephant on Main St.," he said. "If we get one hour of police work a day, I'm not sure we're getting what Staff Sgt. Elliott held out to us; a police officer working the beat. It now appears that's not what we're getting."

Stevens, speaking in support of the proposed building, said the Kinsmen's offer to build the frame would cut the cost of the project and would make it easier for council to approve construction. By using township employees to do preparatory work, Lewis said the costs could be further reduced.

He said community policing would provide people with the assurance that they could do business in the village in peace and without harassment.

"Either we go ahead with the building, or we go on to a rental situation, but I'd like to be assured that we're going to give community policing a chance before the long-weekend," he said.

Councillor Sisson asked about the availability of rental properties downtown to accommodate the police office.

Campbell said the only appropriate location would cost $1,000 a month. Other buildings in the village are either not suitable for the office, he said.

Berry asked if members of Minden's Business Improvement Area (BIA), who actively lobbied for community policing, have considered offering financial support.

Stevens, who is council's liaison to the BIA, said he didn't think asking the BIA for money is appropriate. "I see no reason why they should be penalized for policing on Main St.," he said. "It's to everyone's advantage, not just the BIA."

Maher said the BIA members already pay taxes which would support construction.

Police committee member Jerry Jordan said getting the officer established downtown is important for the village. "A police presence on Main St., whether he's on the street for one hour or 10, is better than absolutely no hours," he said. "Any presence is better than no presence."

Jordan said McMaster would help improve public relations with the police and the new building on Main St. would be an investment for the municipality.

"Don't take a step backward," said Jordan. "Anything built on Main St. is an improvement."

"It seems to me the solution is to get the building built and in service, and then take care of the niceties," said Campbell. Once McMaster is in place, Campbell said the committee can be expanded to include more representation from the community.

But Sisson suggested a more cautious approach. "Rather than go ahead with the building, I feel we should rent for a period of time until we know what's going on," he said. "It's important to get (McMaster) out there. We should rent for two or three months and get him out there."

Graham and Sisson tabled a resolution to rent office space for six months or a year and evaluate the program before making the financial outlay for a permanent building.

"It's very unclear what's happening with community policing, too many things are uncertain," said Graham. "We should rent space while we do proper planning."

He said Minden does have a police presence, and people are not being harassed in the streets. "It's not that bad a community, but we want to protect what we've got."

Renting space would put McMaster on duty as soon as possible, said Graham.

When it came to a vote, Graham and Sisson supported the proposal to rent while Maher and Stevens opposed it, giving Berry the deciding vote. Berry defeated the motion, and said paying $1,000/month in rent would be "wasted money."

Maher and Stevens presented a resolution of their own, calling on council to approve construction of the building as recommended by the police committee.

During discussion, Graham asked if council could be sure the township can afford the building, given the deficit from 1990 that council has to contend with.

"No one at this table can assure you of that," said Berry. "It will have an impact on taxes, as anything we do."

Graham and Sisson opposed the resolution to build the office and Maher and Lewis supported it, once again giving Berry the deciding vote, which he cast in favour of the proposal.

This week, a survey of the property, located on Main St. beside the CIBC, will be carried out and municipal staff will begin the work of preparing the site.

On Saturday morning, the Kinsmen will begin erecting the frame of the building and should have it closed in by the end of the weekend.

Finishing work, including installation of hydro, water and sewer will be carried out in the week leading up to the Canada Day long-weekend.

Berry said he will be on hand at the build-

County was "pushed" into planning; Davis

by Susan Grober

County councillors were pushed into starting a planning department which the county cannot afford to maintain, says Dysart's reeve.

"Haliburton County acted far too quickly in hiring a planner," said Reeve Bill Davis at last Monday's council meeting.

"Municipal Affairs said time was of the essence, and we had to get our act together," said Davis. "Some of these senior level civil servants have a way of pushing things, and the taxpayers want something else. I think the county was hoodwinked."

Davis was concerned because the county has received a smaller grant from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs than expected.

This year, county council budgeted for $67,420 in expenditures, and a $78,685 income to cover the cost of hiring an outside consultant and to pay for a map base. The difference was expected to cover such costs as office supplies, which the government funds.

However, planner Mark Stagg announced at a meeting between ministry representatives and clerks in Dysart that the ministry will only provide a $10,000 grant.

Davis said county council was assured by Chief Administrative Officer Gary McKnight that the funding was in place.

However, on Friday, McKnight told The Times, "I never made that statement to anybody."

McKnight said he has yet to receive anything in writing from the ministry about the amount of funding.

"Right now it's all verbal. So, obviously we aren't going to hire any consultants until commitment is made. And that won't happen this year, by the looks of things."

The ministry provides 50-50 funding for hiring outside consultants, said McKnight. "If the money comes in, we hire a consultant."

If the money doesn't come through, the county won't pay for a consultant or a map base. "There's no income, so there's no outgo," said McKnight. "Basically, it doesn't make that much of a difference in the budget figures."

Councillor Murray Fearrey said the county shouldn't continue with its official plan if local taxpayers must cover 100 per cent of the costs.

Councillor John Parish agreed. "If there's no money, why don't they bite the bullet and end it?"

"If we got the funding, and everything happened right, it would be good to carry on," said Deputy-Reeve Lloyd Leadbeater.

Davis also admonished Stagg for developing an interim planning policy for the seven municipalities which don't have official plans. When sent to the ministry for approval, the ministry stated it doesn't accept interim planning policies.

"He prepared an interim plan without contacting the Ministry of Municipal Affairs to determine whether they would look at an interim plan," said Davis.

"Is this Stagg person out of control down there?" asked Parish.

Fearrey was angered that public meetings have been set up to discuss the official plan's terms of reference, which have never been sent to individual municipalities for approval.

In May, Dysart council passed a resolution requesting that the county provide the municipality an opportunity to approve the terms of reference to be used in establishing the plan.

"Here we are, no terms of reference, nothing's approved, and we set a meeting in August," said Fearrey.

According to a recent press release from Stagg, a "discussion paper" is being prepared to identify some main planning issues. Input received will be used as a basis to develop the main goals of the plan.

The paper will be circulated before August to municipal councils, public agencies, and a number of organizations and associations. Any member of the public may also receive a copy by request.

The meetings will be held Saturday, August 17, at 10 a.m. at the Monmouth Community Centre, and 2 p.m. at the Orange Lodge on George Street in Haliburton Village, and on Saturday August 24, at the Minden Community Centre at 10 a.m. and at the Dorset Recreational Centre at 2 p.m.

Council asks for clarification

The councils of Haliburton County's two largest municipalities have expressed concerns about the county's planning process.

Last Thursday, Minden council joined Dysart in asking for clarification on the activities of the county's planning department.

Minden, Dysart and Cardiff are the only three municipalities that have their own official plans.

The county has been attempting to adopt an interim planning statement which would help cover the other seven municipalities until a county plan is approved.

But Minden councillors are concerned that they might end up subsidising the other townships who don't have official plans.

"It appears we are in a unique situation," said councillor Verne Graham. "Some townships do have official plans and some don't. It appears that those who don't feel they can ride on the coat tails of those that do, but it's false thinking."

Deputy-Reeve Mike Maher said he's beginning to doubt whether some of the assurances coming from the county are totally honest. "I have serious concerns whether the county plan will fly at all," he said.

Council passed a resolution, similar to one passed by Dysart, asking for clarification on how the municipalities with official plans will be re-imbursed for the use of their plans.

On the day we wed:

Phyllis and Jim Graham celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary

by Susan Grober

When many young women dream of their future wedding day, they imagine wearing a flowing, white gown, having a large reception and running off with their new husband for a romantic honeymoon.

In war-time, however, brides were more practical.

Just ask Phyllis Graham, whose betrothed, Jim, was in the army. He came home from camp on Friday, June 13, the couple married on the Saturday, and Jim had to return to camp on the Sunday.

Instead of having a reception after the wedding, the couple went out for dinner. And the bride wore an elegant, but serviceable, blue dress and hat for the ceremony, instead of a white gown and veil.

The year was 1941. Mr. Graham was 22, and his new wife was one year younger.

Last weekend, the Lutterworth couple celebrated their 50th anniversary, and enjoyed the wedding reception they never had, with family and friends, at the Moore Lake Inn.

Quick moves

Jim and Phyllis Graham met at a softball game when they were both high school students in Toronto.

"My two sisters were great athletes, and I went to see one play," says Mrs. Graham. "Jim was playing on the boys' team. But there was another fella after me at the time."

"He just wasn't fast enough," says Mr. Graham. "I walked you home that night, asked you to go to the show on the Saturday."

"And that was that," Mrs. Graham says with a laugh. "We sat up in the balcony at the old St. Clair Theatre."

"And who should sit behind us but Willie Strong," reminds Mr. Graham.

"That's the one who was after me," Mrs. Graham explains.

The couple dated for five years. Mr. Graham went into the army in 1941, and didn't come home finally until October of 1945.

Most young brides of today would cringe at the thought of being separated from their husbands for so long. But Mrs. Graham realized there was nothing she could do about it.

"I worked all the time he was away, at an electronics company, making tubes for radios," she says. "We were all in war work at that time."

"I didn't see you for about three months," says Mr. Graham.

"The first call I received, he was on his way to Hong Kong," says Mrs. Graham. "I nearly had a fit."

Phyllis and Jim Graham as they looked on the day they were married in Toronto, Saturday, June 14, 1941. The day after the wedding, instead of going on the traditional honeymoon, Mr. Graham had to report back to army camp to prepare to go to Europe.

Mr. Graham didn't end up going to Hong Kong, though. One man had the mumps, so he was quarantined for awhile.

But he did travel. "I went to England, then France, and to Germany. And I celebrated V-J Day (On August 14, 1945, when the Japanese signed surrender terms) with the Americans. I was granted leave to go to Paris, and sent a telegram asking for money. That was the only time in all our years of marriage that my wife let me down."

"I figured he had enough," says Mrs. Graham. "I knew he'd go to see the Folies Bergeres."

"I was between pay periods, and I figured Phyll would send me the money, knowing I really wanted to go," says Mr. Graham. "I had to barter other things. I flogged cigarettes and chocolate, and ended up having a marvellous time. We wine and dined. And when V-J was settled, we drank champagne at the Eiffel Tower."

Mr. Graham recalls taking a stroll in Pigalle, the red light district. "And at the hotel we were staying in, they put on dances for the fellas and brought girls in."

Mrs. Graham maintains that not sending the money was a smart move.

Keeping in touch

The money Mrs. Graham sent her husband didn't all go toward wining, dining and dancing girls.

"Jimmy would send things home," she says. He sent such joke gifts as fake money, and the usual romantic gifts, like jewelry. An aquamarine ring she wore at her anniversary party came from Germany. But one present she received from the same country nearly got her in trouble with the law.

Upon returning from work one day, Mrs. Graham found a big bundle waiting at the apartment she shared with her sister. Inside the parcel was a large, round, Nazi pennant emblazoned with a swastika. Her husband sent it as a souvenir.

"It was wet, so I hung it out on the line. RCMPs came to the door, because they thought a bunch of Nazis had moved in."

Mr. Graham also received his fair share of parcels from his wife and his mother.

"We were on rations, and I saved mine for sugar and tea," says Mrs. Graham. Once she waxed oranges to send to her husband, and only one went bad. On his birthday one year, Mr. Graham received a fruit cake, which he shared with his buddies.

The couple also wrote many letters to one another when they were apart. "At least two a week," says Mrs. Graham.

"Once I didn't hear from him for about four months, and I was very upset about that," she says. "Finally, I got a letter from his padre, saying he was all right."

He was in Belgium, setting up ammunition dumps for a battle. "We were only supposed to be away seven days, and they told us not to bring our mess tents and blankets."

"It ended up we were away for several weeks," says Mr. Graham. "That's where I learned to chew tobacco. Until I chewed while riding on the running board of a tractor-trailer, and hit a bump and swallowed it. I couldn't even look at somebody chewing tobacco after that."

Working over worries

While her husband was overseas, Mrs. Graham spent her time working and earning $20 a week.

"What could you do?" she says. "I wasn't the only one with a husband away. Four of the girls I worked with lost their husbands on D-Day at the Normandy beachhead. Another lost her husband on a ship. He was a sailor."

There was much heartache for the wives. Still, Mrs. Graham says they had no choice but to carry on. Life was different in those days.

"I think you worried everyday, but we

Mislaid plans

Developing an official plan is going to be one of the most difficult challenges Haliburton County is likely to face in coming years.

Reaching the consensus necessary to make the plan relevant to the county's ten municipalities, each with unique needs, is going to be a test of diplomacy and cooperation.

Adding to an already difficult situation will be this November's municipal elections which could see many new faces around the table, all of whom will have to be brought up to speed on the plan.

In a process that depends so much on open lines of communication, it is unfortunate to see that the county planning department has lost the confidence of Minden and Dysart, the two largest municipalities in the county.

If County Council can't sell the official plan to its own members, how does it expect to find acceptance among the general population of the county?

Before the process gets much farther along, council should take the time to ensure that all the players, big and small, understand where the plan is going and how it's going to get there.

It may seem obvious that to expect that all members of county council understand the official plan they are trying to develop, but unless this can be accomplished, the entire process is doomed to failure.

Grade Four students Amy Brandon and Michele Robinson have prepared this story for our readers' amusement. Our cartoonist, Gil Parcell supplied the art work.

The Honeybees go on Strike

Everything in the town of Bearabee was going great until Priminester Bryan Mulronbee made up the G.S.T.

The price of honey went up from $2/pound to $12/pound.

Queen Bee got mad because she only had 25 out of 200 bees to work and 15 of them went on strike.

The news spread quickly.

All of the 175 bees had been rehired and the Queen Bee herself decided to join the other bees on strike.

All the bears in the city of Bearabee were furious with Priminester Bryan Mulronbee.

All the honeybees that were on strike met in front of the government building an announced loud and clear, "honeybees are on strike because fo the G.S.T."

And with that, they flew off.

Priminester Bryan Mulronbee was sick of being criticized by all the animals in the city of Bearabee, so he decided it was time for action.

So he called his wise man.

"Wise man, what should I do?" asked Bryan.

"You should call a meeting in the village square, apologize and drop the G.S.T.," said the wise man.

But Bryan disagreed, so the wise man told him to help himself.

"Thanks a lot," Bryan muttered, and then he went to bed.

The next morning while he was eating his breakfast something came over him and he reconsidered. He sent 1200 invitations out to all the towns people and everybody showed up, tired and fed up.

Bryan gave a speech about how sorry he was and everybody accepted his apologies.

Now Bryan and the towns people had one more small problem, the had to convince the bees to come back to work.

Mr. Twinkie the bear spoke up. "Maybe we should have a huge party," he said, and the other bears agreed.

So invitations were sent out to the bees, and they went something like this:

Bryan Mulronbee invites you to a party at the Government Building at 7 p.m. Please come!

Sincerely,
Bryan Mulronbee.

At 7 p.m. all the animals, including the honeybees were there. Bryan Mulronbee made a wonderful speech and soon everything in the city of Bearabee was back to normal.

The End.

Lawyer jokes are still around and they're getting meaner

And it came to pass that on one fine morning the Pope and a lawyer arrived at the gates of heaven at the same time. St. Peter himself turned the gate keys over to an attendant angel and escorted the two new arrivals to their quarters. The Pope was given a spartan cubicle with a narrow cot, a plywood desk, a wooden chair and a Bible. The lawyer was led to a sumptuous eight-room penthouse with a walk-in liquor cabinet, wide-screen satellite TV and a huge master bedroom, complete with waterbed and hot tub.

"There must be some mistake" said the lawyer. "Surely the Pope should have this room."

"Oh no," said St. Peter. "We have dozens of Popes in heaven, but you're our very first attorney."

Lawyer jokes. I thought they were a passing fad a couple of years ago, but they just keep multiplying. And getting meaner.

"Nope, it repeats on me," says the cannibal. Then he points at another tray. "What's that stuff?"

"Breaded doctor," says the butcher. "For you, just $3.50."

"I don't want to spend too much," says the cannibal. "You got any fresh lawyer?"

"Yes," says the butcher, "but it'll run you $12.00 a pound."

"Twelve dollars! That's outrageous! Why do you charge so much?"

The butcher mutters, "Mister, you ever tried to clean a lawyer?"

You know there's been some serious image tarnishing when lawyers play second fiddle to politicians.

Of course that's part of the problem — so many lawyers wind up becoming politicians. Brian Mulroney is a former lawyer. So is Michael Wilson and Jean Chretien.

John Turner, Pierre Trudeau, Mike Pearson, John Diefenbaker — it's hard to find a prime minister who didn't hone his insincere smile at the front of a courtroom.

Okay, Joe Clark was never a lawyer — but then he wasn't much of a prime minister either.

But it's not just the political connection that makes us love to loathe lawyers, it's the hogs-at-the-trough perception too.

Barking dogs are tormenting some County residents

Editor:

In response to your article on barking dogs, I have had numerous phone calls from Tormenteds wanting to know what they can do about it. Mail me your name, address, phone number and a short description of your problem.

I am writing the Judge for his, unknown until now, "solution to solving the problem without returning the same kind of nuisance (torment)" he referred to in Court. We'll all be so relieved to know that someone knows how to go about solving the problem. I'll let you know as soon as he tells me.

I hope he's not going to tell me to call the By-law officer, as I did, because he's an expert at telling you why his Council's By-law, passed for this purpose, cannot be acted upon, because he's afraid the TORMENTOR will hire a lawyer and he will lose his case. (He's got nothing to worry about if they hire the same lawyer I did, on his suggestion). This lawyer is now being investigated by Osgoode Hall's Complaints Department for his conduct on the matter. The dog-catcher's only words of advice were "move if you don't like it" (one of the shortfalls of cheap taxes, I guess). Don't feel picked on Sir, calls showed all Township dog-catchers have the same attitude.

I hope the Judge is not going to tell me to go to the Council, because their solution is to label it a FEUD and that Noise By-laws are defunct in that case, and reserved for different kinds of noises not related to feuds and only against selected people, to quote the Dog-catcher.

I hope the Judge is not going to tell me to call the police. They say it's up to the Township Council and besides, they say a continuously Barking Dog can bark all it wants because what it does is natural, and they tell the Tormentor the same thing - that there's nothing anyone can do about stopping a Barking Dog. That really helps the matter, doesn't it!! Their attitude is that the problem will cure itself when one of the parties move away.

So I hope our friend, the learned Judge, is not relying on these methods which would seem to be the obvious way to cure "interfering with the lawful enjoyment of property" without calling the Guilford Dog Mafia.

And just remember this, if you the TORMENTED speak out against Haliburton County's Barking dogs, you can spend thousands, be labelled a Criminal, and for an added lift, get a $500.00 fine or 25 days in jail, forced to go monthly to a "friendly" probation officer for 2 years to be asked if you've become a Criminal AGAIN in the month since she last saw you!

"Kinda takes some of the shine and image off Haliburton, doesn't it".

To all those who phoned me and other Tormenteds, the only solution until the Committee gets rolling, is to PHONE your Township office 3 times a day so they don't forget you and until you find a quiet township to move to. You Never Know, they just might have a mental relapse and remember they are supposed to be there for the collective Citizens who voted for them and not just for their own personal enjoyment.

Oh yes, the Phone number is hidden in the Blue pages under Municipalities on Pages 8 and 9. Oh, and one last tip to the Barking Dog owners who have called me and can't seem to speak, or just mumble something - a word to the wise: our machine automatically gives us your phone number before we lift the receiver and gives us a record for Court evidence - "AH", the wonderful world of technology - even the NON-criminals have their problems.

Spending needs to be monitored

The nine-branch County library network is a pretty lean machine. Three full-time employees and around 25 part-time employees direct traffic for 35,000 books, tapes and films. Of the $270,000 budget, less than one-third comes from local tax dollars. The rest comes from the province.

Salary and benefit increases this year will amount to $20,000 and this is about the only area that could be criticized. The county has set into motion a pay equity program which will see a minimum wage of $12/hour. That program was started two years ago and is in the final phase.

We'll talk more about this later from the point of view of the county as an employer.

Now the bad news.

Even though the County spends $7 million a year to run all its operations, cost controls are 60 days late. That is, the management committee strikes a budget but never knows what the actual spending is for a particular period of time until two months later. At their July meeting, our managers will get the numbers for May.

Community Tax Watch

by Gary Kenney and John Beachli

That's sort of like driving at 60 m.p.h. along side a cliff with your head stuck out the window to watch where you've been 100 yards back.

Instead of setting up a Planning/Development Office to spend $100,000 more in taxes this year, we think it would be wiser if a monitoring system was put in place to tell us when we overspend.

We applied to the Warden for permission to appear before the whole of County Council in July. We will presenting the names of thier neighbours upset with the 35.7 per cent tax hike, and offer ways to show a surplus this year so that a tax reduction in 1992 will get us back on track with the rate of inflation.

Valuable possessions stolen

Editor:

It was with great pride we purchased our 1 room cottage on South Beaver Lake in Lutterworth Township, because we knew we would never afford a home in the Toronto area, not even if my husband could secure a job with any permanency.

Two years ago we were able to add bedrooms to accommodate our growing family. It is not finished with inside walls or floors or other luxuries but it is ours and we love it. Every purchase was carefully serviced and maintained. Many of the things are still stored in their original boxes.

Our greatest treasure was our 1985, 2 h.p. Suzuki motor. You guessed it. Somebody looking for a fast, easy buck took everything we owned after the Victoria weekend holiday.

So if you're zipping around in your "hot new" motor, renovating your home and cutting trees with tools "as good as new", cooling yourself with "nice-looking" fans, and listening to the steady tick of my dutch grandmother's swiss clock and a radio that probably only cost you a few bucks, think of the young couple with two young children who now have nothing and will be unable to replace what they once patiently saved and strived for, and call the Minden O.P.P. Please!

I would also like to remind all residents of Victoria and Haliburton Counties that, if a canvasser did not come to their door, donations can be sent to:

Your continued support makes it possible for us to provide funds for research, education, and most importantly service to Cancer patients in Victoria-Haliburton.

world. "Never" he says, "fall afoul of the justice system."

He was referring to the American system but he could have been talking about our country. Justice is a near-invisible commodity up here as well. Any Canadian citizen luckless enough to wind up in the dock of a Canadian court is probably poised on the brink of one of the most miserable and disheartening experiences of his or her life.

And what really makes it stick in our craw is knowing that no matter how much we bleed, the lawyers never lose.

Personally, that is. They may lose an argument, the client, the whole case, but their fee comes off the top.

Edward "Fast Eddie" Greenspan demanded a million bucks up front to defend accused murderer Helmut Buxbaum.

Eddie got his million. Helmut got the slammer.

Donald Marshall served 11 years for a murder he didn't commit. The lawyers who got him off charged $588,000.

Donald Marshall, the wronged party, received a grand total of $270,000 - before legal fees.

Nothing wrong with any of that of course. All perfectly legal.

But boy, it burns those of us who don't have our names on a shingle.

I see that China has a chronic shortage of lawyers. The Chinese government estimates it needs 500,000 new lawyers to handle court backlogs.

Flight training approved for Stanhope Airport

by Carol Moffatt

The following briefs are the results of discussions held at Stanhope's regular council meeting held on Wednesday, June 12.

Dump purchase approved

The provincial government has approved Stanhope's application for funding to expand the Hawk Lake landfill site. The government has provided the township with a $16,500 grant to purchase Crown land surrounding the dump which the Ministry of the Environment deemed a necessary 'buffer zone' in order for the expansion to occur. A similar application is proceeding for an expansion of the Pine Springs landfill site.

Water access transferred

The federally-owned water access at the Little Hawk Lake landing will be increased in size. The provincial government has agreed to transfer the waterway under its jurisdiction to the federal government. The waterway in question is the controversial docking area directly abutting the federal docks, currently maintained by the township. The public access point, known as a water lot lease, has been extended to the township for another five year term. Stanhope clerk Gerald Bain said the change only makes the maintenance of the access point easier, since it results in only one governing faction being responsible as opposed to three.

Bridge design accepted

Council reviewed and approved plans for a new bridge on St. Peter's Rd. at Maple Lake. The preliminary plans, submitted by Triton Engineering, proposed two options, one of which would have required cutting down two large pine trees and expropriating a small parcel of privately-owned property. Council members expressed concern over the tree-cutting and expropriation and opted instead for the second proposal in which the new, two-lane bridge will follow the same path. The approved plan calls for a stop sign on the bridge, making North Shore Rd. the right-of-way. The plan approval is the go-ahead for the engineering and design of the bridge itself. Gerald Bain said it is hoped the bridge will be in place sometime in 1992, but said confirmation of the construction will depend on funding.

Flight training taking off

Stanhope council has approved a proposed ground school and flight training program at the Stanhope airport.

The flying lessons, scheduled to take place Mondays through Wednesdays, will be provided by Skycraft Air Transport Inc., a company based at the Oshawa Municipal Airport.

Stanhope airport Manager Mike Carey is excited about the program and said he hopes the lessons will begin this week (week of 17th), after a brief safety standards inspection by the Department of Transport.

'I hope people will take advantage of getting their licence here in Haliburton as opposed to other places,' he said, citing considerably less air traffic as one good reason to learn here. Dozens of interested people have already called the airport enquiring about the lessons, said Carey.

A Cessna 150 two-seater will most likely be used, although a 172 four-seater could find its way into the lessons, he said.

The total cost of becoming a pilot through the Stanhope program is about $4,355, said Carey. This includes 50 hours of ground school, a complete kit of books and materials, 30 hours of dual instruction (lessons with an instructor in the plane) and 15 hours of solo flying, he said.

The cost for dual instruction is $92 per hour, which Carey said is pretty close to, or lower than, the going rate at other airports.

The minimum age for the lessons is 17, and Carey warned that anyone the instructors feel isn't ready after the minimum compulsory lessons will have to pay for further instruction.

'There are a few more details, but I'm hoping a lot of people will use it. Once we get a few on board more will join,' said Carey.

Man placed on probation for buying stolen vehicle

The following cases were heard by Provincial Court Judge L.T.G. Collins in Minden last Wednesday. Rick Bagge acted as Crown Attorney.

Man found guilty of impaired driving

A 24-year-old Scarborough man, who rolled his car onto its side two summers ago, said at the time of his arrest for impaired driving that police discriminated against him because of his race.

The incident occurred on August 16, 1989, when Colin Edward Noel was returning home from the Rockcliffe Hotel, driving on South Water Street, near Campbell's Flower Shop.

Noel was later taken to the Minden OPP office, and two breathalyzer tests determined he had 160 mg and 141 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood. The legal limit is 80 mg.

"I feel I'm getting dicked around — I'm a black man in a white man's town," Noel told the breathalyzer officer, Constable Mark Davis, at the police detachment.

At the trial, Noel pleaded not guilty to impaired driving. He said he only had one beer at the Rockcliffe Hotel, but later drank from a bottle of scotch because he was shaky after the accident. Noel said he got the alcohol from two friends he met while heading toward a pay phone to call for help.

However, Constable Davis testified that Noel told him he had consumed two double scotches at the Rockcliffe.

In the courts

Davis said while he questioned Noel at the detachment, the man's behaviour was erratic, from polite to abusive to carefree and talkative.

Noel also acted belligerent toward the police constable.

Davis said that before, during and after the breathalyzer tests, Noel repeatedly said: "Let's cut the bull—. What happens if I walk out now?"

At one point, Noel reached over and rotated a knob on the breathalyzer machine, said Davis. When asked to perform physical tests to determine whether he was impaired, Noel refused.

Constable Robert Wood said he had to put Noel in a holding cell as he filled out the man's release papers, because he wouldn't stop ranting and raving.

Judge Collins surmised that Noel's claim that he wasn't impaired was a "recent invention."

Noel said this wasn't true, and maintained: "I'm innocent."

After losing his licence for 15 months, and being fined $800, Noel asked: "How do I appeal?"

When this repeated question was ignored, he left the courtroom without signing any forms. Court officer Kelly Anderson followed Noel outside the building, and handed him the forms, which Noel dropped to the ground.

Man bought hot ATV

A 33-year-old Bancroft man pleaded guilty to possessing a stolen Suzuki all-terrain vehicle (ATV).

The ATV and a trailer had been stolen from a man in Brantford. The ATV was eventually sold for $1,550 to Paul J. Armstrong, who told the court he didn't realize the vehicle was stolen.

Armstrong, who said he bought the vehicle for his father, received a suspended sentence and 18 months probation.

Because Armstrong lost money in purchasing the vehicle, his defence lawyer argued he shouldn't be subject to a fine.

Impaired driver jailed seven days

A 35-year-old man was sentenced to seven days in jail for failing to appear in court after being charged with impaired driving.

On March 18, 1989, Wayne Patrick Hogan was stopped by police on Highway 121, and later given a breathalyzer test which determined he had 120 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood. The legal limit is 80 mg.

On June 21 of that year, Hogan failed to appear in court.

"Failure to attend court is a serious matter," said Judge Collins, before sentencing Hogan to jail.

For the over 80 charge, Hogan had his driver's licence suspended for one year, and must pay a $600 fine.

"If you do operate a vehicle while under suspension, you are liable to go to prison for up to two years," Judge Collins warned Hogan.

Purchases made with NSF cheques

A 31-year-old man who bounced $484.30 worth of cheques around the county must make retribution.

Gerald J. Prenger pleaded guilty to writing a $103.15 cheque to Elstone Motors in Haliburton for car parts last October 26; a $278.24 cheque to Dollo's IGA in Minden on November 7; a $20 at Roger's Auto Wreckers in Harcourt on November 20; and $82.91 at Eagle Lake Foodtown on November 26.

He also pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to attend court on the matters, on February 18, 1991.

For the fraud charges, Prenger received a suspended sentence, must take credit counselling, and must make restitution on or before November 1, 1991. For failing to appear, he was fined $300.

Minden man fined $600 for impaired charge

A $600 fine and driver's licence suspension for one year were the penalties for a Minden man charged with driving after having consumed more than the legal limit of alcohol.

Robert Laurent Roberge, age 20, of Haliburton has been charged with two counts of Break, Enter and Theft after police concluded an investigation into the break-ins at Emmerson Lumber and the Haliburton Machine Shop which occurred May 22, 1991. A portion of the stolen property has been recovered. Roberge appeared in Provincial Court Minden, June 7, at which time he was remanded to a later date.

Cause Disturbance

Lorne Cummings, 47, of Haliburton has been charged with Causing a Disturbance after police responded to an incident on June 5 in the village of Haliburton. Cummings was arrested and will appear in Provincial Court Lindsay to answer to the charges.

Injury Accident

Wayne Hinmarsh, 32, of Crediton was injured in a single vehicle ATV accident on Saturday, June 8, at the Haliburton Forest & Wildlife. Hindmarsh was traveling on one of the roads, when the ATV went off the road and rolled over. Hind-marsh was thrown from the vehicle and struck a boulder. Hindmarsh was taken to hospital. Charges are pending in this matter.

Pursuit

Edward James Raeside, 31, of Newmarket was injured in a single vehicle accident which occurred during his attempt to evade police after being stopped at a R.I.D.E. stop during the early morning hours of June 9, 1991. Raeside was stopped at the north end of Minden, when asked to pull to the side of the road he took off northbound on Hwy. 35, police followed him and attempted to stop him with a rolling road block. While attempting to go around the lead police car, Raeside dropped his motorcycle. Raeside has been charged with Dangerous Driving, Driving while prohibited and Failing to stop for police.

Poor Parking

A house party on Brohm Dr. outside of the village of Haliburton late Saturday, June 8 was the focus of attention for police when complaints were received about squealing tires and excessive noise. On arrival, police found numerous cars parked in such a manner as to block the road to the extent that emergency vehicles such as fire trucks or hydro vehicles could not pass. The 20 offending vehicles have been identified and the owners of the vehicles will be charged with Interfering with traffic contrary to the Highway Traffic Act. The vehicles were removed shortly after police arrived.

Drunk driver forced car off road

On May 17, Robbie Stata was stopped after police received a complaint about the operation of a Ford Mustang in Minden Village.

Stata, who said he had consumed a 26 oz bottle of rye, was given a breathalyzer test, which determined he had 105 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood. The legal limit is 80 mg.

$1,000 fine an alternative to jail

An impaired driver who forced another car off the road had his licence suspended for two years, and was fined $1,000.

Noel W. Griffin made a left turn while driving on County Road 7 in Guilford Township, and forced a northbound driver onto the shoulder when his vehicle drifted onto the left side of the road.

Crown Attorney Rick Bagg asked for a jail term. However, Judge Collins handed down a steep fine of $1,000 instead.

If Griffin doesn't pay the fine within a year, he will spend 25 days in jail.

Impaired driver fled accident

A 51-year-old man was found guilty of failing to stop after his truck collided with a van.

Garwood John Stevenson was given a year to pay a $1,400 fine for failing to stop at an accident, and impaired driving.

On January 19, a truck driven by Stevenson on Deep Bay Road hit the back end of an oncoming van, knocking it into a snowbank.

The van was driven by Jalna Wolfrum, who was with her nephew, Jason. Because the truck failed to stop, the woman hailed an oncoming car, which happened to be a police car.

Stevenson, who pled not guilty to the charge, said he didn't realize he'd hit the van, because his snowplow hangs low and sometimes scrapes against the pavement.

A breathalyzer test determined Stevenson had 184 mg of alcohol in 100 ml of blood, and the legal limit is 80 mg.

Of Stevenson's total fine, $800 was handed down after he pleaded guilty to im-

Sharing the secrets of a long marriage

kept ourselves busy."

She belonged to a club where members visited soldiers in hospital, held bingo games, and had dances.

The war separated the couple for a long time. "But we made up for it in the last 45 years, haven't we, dear," says Mr. Graham.

"We had a good life," agrees Mrs. Graham. "We can't complain. We've had our ups and downs, the same as everybody else."

Mr. Graham returned home on Hal-lowe'en, and soon after the couple purchased their first home.

"We fixed it all up, and lived there 10 years," says Mrs. Graham. "Then we moved into another house. But after we bought a place at the lake (in Colborne), we moved into an apartment."

Mr. Graham got a job with Simpson's in 1952, and retired after 30 years. Since 1956, Mrs. Graham worked for the competition, Eaton's.

Mrs. Graham's brother, Jerry Pillsworth, owned the Stedmans store in Minden from 1970 to 1981. The Grahams liked the area, bought a home on the Gull River in 1980, and retired there two years later.

They live here seven months of the year, and head to Florida once the snow falls.

Secrets of a long marriage

Mrs. Graham's mother had a stroke when she was 60 years old, "and was a vegetable for 13 years. I said to Jimmy, 'We are going to do some travelling while we're still young.' We started in 1967, and from then on went somewhere nearly every year."

The couple has especially enjoyed travelling throughout England and Scotland, and twice went to see the Loch Ness monster. "But we never saw her," says Mrs. Graham, who adds that the trip to Tijuana was an eye-opening experience. "My God, what a place. Some people there just live in cardboard shacks."

The couple have no children, but have travelled with nieces and nephews. They say their mutual love for travel is one of the things which has kept them together.

"We like all the same things," says Mrs. Graham. "We do things together, and used to bowl with a group of friends. Of course, Jimmy would have his weekend with the boys. I would just go downtown with a girl-friend then, for dinner and a show."

At home, the couple have always shared duties. "We work together," she says. "He cuts the lawn, and I look after the flowers. He'll push the vacuum because I've got arthritis in my back."

"I used to do laundry when we lived in an apartment, so I could get all the news from the girls," Mr. Graham says with a wink.

"Compassion means a lot, too," says Mrs. Graham, pretending to ignore the last comment. "When one hurts, the other hurts. I've had trials and tribulations with my health, and he's been wonderful all through it."

When asked how she would advise a young couple today on how to enjoy many years together in the future, Mrs. Graham just shrugs.

"Today, I couldn't tell you. Young people just want too much too fast. Anyone today who would marry like I did at 21 is crazy..."

"We had to do without a lot in those days," she says. "Young people want everything now. We just had to make do, bit by bit."

Mr. Graham has the last word on the formula to make a marriage work. "It's a 50-50 proposition," he says.

Phyllis and Jim Graham celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last week. The couple, now residing in Lutterworth along the Gull River, originally came from Toronto. They spent the first years of married life separated by war.

Dysart will limit hours of landfill operation

The following matters were discussed at last Monday's Dysart council meeting:

Landfill restrictions

Council plans to restrict the hours of operation of its landfill sites, which are filling up with garbage from other areas.

"It won't cost us any more money, and it would do the job," said Councillor Murray Fearrey. "We just can't continue to keep our landfill sites open seven days a week with others only open two."

Fearrey said he's angered: "when I see some of the people going into the Haliburton landfill site, because they can go there anytime."

Councillor Brian Watts, who chairs the municipality's landfill committee, further suggested the Kennisis Lake and Haliburton Lake landfill sites should each be gated and looked after by an attendant.

Reeve Bill Davis said students could be hired as attendants over the summer.

More garbage

Councillor Murray Fearrey is miffed that Dysart must assure the Ministry of Environment that local landfill sites have adequate capacity before approving new plans of subdivision.

"I wonder if they've stopped developing in downtown Toronto," said Fearrey. "They've got no room for their garbage."

Council passed a resolution that the Haliburton landfill site can accommodate the waste created by a 41-lot subdivision applied for by Greg Brown Construction.

Centre won't be funded

A request for $10,000 to update a privately-owned community centre was turned down by council.

The Haliburton Lake Cottagers' Association made the request, reminding council that the community centres in Harcourt and West Guilford are supported by council.

However, councillors felt Dysart was justified in funding the latter two centres because they are in the name of the municipality.

"I don't see how we can do that with a private building," said Deputy-Reeve Lloyd Leadbeater. "It would be like funding Harcourt Park."

Sewer saga continues

Environment minister Ruth Grier has yet to respond to Dysart council's request for a meeting on the sewage treatment plant expansion.

And this leaves council wondering how it can help a potential developer in the area.

Wayne Bolahood wrote to council stating he wants a status report on the plant's capacity before developing property.

"Here's a guy trying to invest in our community, and we can't tell him anything," said Councillor Murray Fearrey.

The plant is currently at capacity, and the only assurance council can provide is that a developer can use existing facilities.

At present, a study is underway to determine whether Lake Kashagawigamog can handle added effluent.

Waste watchers

Council gave the county's waste management committee permission to hold a public meeting at Head Lake Park.

"They might get bigger participation if it's held in the park," said Reeve Bill Davis.

The meeting will be held from 10 to 2 p.m., on Saturday, July 13. If it rains, the meeting will be held upstairs at the Dysart Arena.

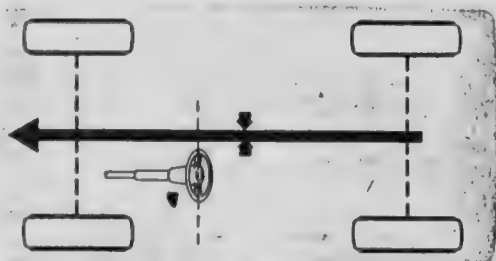

It took three members of the Highland Games Committee, George Logan, Brian Sachs and Jane Rosenberg, to steady this caber after it was hoisted into a vertical position last week. The caber will be tossed many times during this weekend's Highland Games in Dysart's Glebe Park. Other events will include dancing, piping and tug-of-war.

The Haliburton Highland Games will be held in Dysart's Glebe Park this weekend.

Minden Juniors withdraw from league

The Rockcliffe Hustlers have split a pair of games during diamond action this past week in the Tri-County Baseball League.

Wednesday the team travelled to Fenelon Falls where they went down to a 7-4 loss at the hands of their hosts. On the mound for the Hustlers was Jack Snell. Back in Minden Thursday evening, the Hustlers hosted Kent Tavern of Lindsay. The squad squeaked a close 7-6 victory out of the game. They faced some fairly strong bats from Lindsay, including a two home run effort by Mark Williams. Brian Shaw was on the mound for the Hustlers.

Contrary to optimistic reports offered last week, Minden will not have two teams in the Tri-County circuit this season.

The Minden Juniors had announced their intention to participate in the league, and had been pencilled into the league schedule.

However, the team, which also wanted to play in another league, was stymied by a regulation which permits a team to play in only one league. The Juniors have decided to withdraw from the Tri-County league.

That means Minden area fans can concentrate their attention on making sure the Hustlers make it to the finals this year.

The action resumes this

Thursday night as the Hustlers entertain Bracebridge on the Minden diamond. Game time is 8:30 p.m. The

A Lindsay player watches the ball drop as a Hustler reaches first.

Exemption will let some stores open on Sundays county will have to abide by a set of provincial criteria which define those businesses which qualify for the tourism exemption.

In order to open on Sundays and holidays, a business must be in a geographic area which meets two of the following six conditions. The area must have:

- historical or natural attractions;
- cultural or ethnic attractions;
- a concentration of hospitality services;
- shopping with a unified concept or theme, such as farmers' markets, heritage of handicraft items or other specialized shopping activities catering to visitors;
- access to hiking, boating, camping, fishing, or other recreational activities;
- fairs, festivals or other special event attractions.

In order for the county to pass a by-law, businesses must apply for a tourism exemption. Businesses can apply individually or as a group within a specified area and must have the support of the Chamber of Commerce.

Even if an area meets the provincial requirements for a tourism exemption, the council does not have to pass a by-law permitting retailers to open on Sundays.

Larger retailers, such as grocery stores, department stores and hardware stores, have to meet a second set of requirements, even if they are located in an area which qualifies for a tourism exemption.

These stores must provide services on Sundays and holidays primarily for visitors and must also have at least one of the following characteristics:

- recognized for historical or distinctive architectural features;
- feature items of cultural or ethnic appeal;
- provide specialized goods or services, such as heritage or handicraft items;

- provide goods or services necessary to tourist activities in the area served by that establishment.

Larger retailers are those which are larger than 7,500 square feet and/or have eight or more employees.

Mike Zimmerman, a spokesman for the Solicitor General's office, told The Times last week that the county will have a great deal of flexibility with how it interprets the Bill once it becomes law.

"There is wide ranging flexibility with the by-law. It could cover one or more establishments, different classes of businesses, specify certain parts of the municipality, limit the hours of operation and specify certain periods of the year," said Zimmerman.

He also said the province will not be monitoring the municipalities to see how they interpret the Act when they pass by-laws.

Unlike other by-laws, Zimmerman says council's decision on Sunday shopping will be final and there is no process to appeal the decision to the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB), which hears appeals on other municipal by-laws.

Affected parties could take the matter to court as part of a civil suit if they feel the by-law does not uphold the principle of a common day of pause.

Because the Retail Business Holidays Act is covered by provincial legislation, enforcement of the law will be carried out by the Ontario Provincial Police.

The Bill received first reading on June 4, and is expected to receive second reading by the time the provincial legislature adjourns for the summer on June 28.

The Standing Committee on Justice will hold public hearings on the bill, probably in late summer or early autumn, and third reading and royal assent could be received by the end of the year.

Once the Bill becomes law, no Sunday or holiday shopping will be permitted until a county by-law is passed which provides tourism exemptions.

At Thursday's council meeting, Minden councillors expressed some concern about the proposed amendments.

Reeve Bern Berry said he read the background material provided by the province, and doesn't see how the situation for local stores will change.

"As far as I'm concerned we're a tourist area and will continue allowing stores to open," he said.

But Councillor Verne Graham said it is still not certain whether how the Bill will be applied. "It needs clarification to see if we are a tourist area," he said. "Retailers will have to meet the criteria." The amendment will make it more difficult for stores to open on Sunday, said Graham.

Deputy-Reeve Mike Maher said he finds the Bill, "a little bit frightening" and said there are going to be interpretation problems.

Warden Carol Puffer says the county's management committee will be discussing the issue at this Wednesday's meeting. Until she knows more about the Bill, Puffer said she can't comment on its effect to local retailers.

The Minden Women's Institute hosted a open house at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery last week. Guests enjoyed tea and snacks as they examined some of the local historical material at the displays.

Don Coulter, portraying a father who wakes up one day in his son's place, coyly raises his hand to answer a question asked by his son's teacher Mrs. Hope (played by Lyndeale Gauci) in a modern-day classroom.

Norland play makes the quick switch

by Susan Grober

When a group of students march onto a stage singing Pink Floyd's We Don't Need No Education, you realize this is not just another grade school musical.

In fact, the song was all in fun during last Wednesday night's production of the musical Just Another Day at School, and proved that the students and staff of Norland Public School have a refreshing sense of humour.

Friends and family members filled seats of the Norland Recreation Centre to enjoy the delightful musical, which was the result of many hours of co-operative work by everyone in the school.

The theme centred around schools in the past, present and future.

The fun began with Henry and Tony, a father and son arguing over who had it the most difficult in school.

"I had to walk three miles to go to school in my day," lamented Henry (played by Don Coulter), as his son Tony (Wayde Greer) shook his head in dismay.

As the song goes, parents just don't understand. Unless, of course, some magical twist of fate occurs. And that's exactly what happened to this pair when, in the tradition of such movies as Freaky Friday, Vice Versa and Like Father, Like Son, Henry and Tony woke up the next morning to find their roles reversed.

So Tony got stuck in a school of the past, where teacher Miss Wicker (Morgan Dollack) asked the class to spell chrysanthemum. Of course, only one keener in the class knew how.

Eventually, Tony got strapped for insolence. And in the end he realized his father did indeed have a more difficult time in school.

Or did he?

Since Tony traveled to a school of the past, his father had to take his place in his modern-day classroom. It seemed easy for Henry at first; especially after he whizzed through a math test and made no errors. (After all, he is an accountant!)

But Henry wasn't too happy when the teacher, Mrs. Hope (Lyndeale Gauci), accused him of cheating. And when Henry was asked to work on a computer, he didn't know which end was up.

By the end of the day, each learned to sympathize with the problems faced by the other generation.

Another scene was set in a playground, complete with bullying boys and gossiping girls, skippers and ball players, and a persistent joker whose repertoire included the following groaner:

"Why did the elephant cross the road? - Because it was the chicken's day off"

Other scenes were set in both junior/intermediate and primary classrooms, and featured such songs as: Three Nanny Goats Gruff, Math Chant, Garbage Song, Charlie Brown, Peanut Butter Jive, the Greatest Love of All, and When You Wish Upon a Star.

Haliburton County Senior Games are over for another year

For the past month, 233 senior men and women in Haliburton County have been competing in 15 different activities known as the Ontario Senior Games. Whether playing six games of cribbage, or 18 holes of golf, teaming up with a partner for horseshoes or shuffleboard, or competing against their own time in a three kilometre walk or a hundred metre swim, the variety of activities provided a broad enough range to interest anyone.

At a closing luncheon, June 20, ribbons will be presented to the top three competitors in each event. While this may seem like small compensation for their efforts, the thrill of having competed and the pride of achievement is reward, in itself, for many. Some have competed in as many as seven different events.

For many there will be further challenges. With Muskoka, Haliburton forms part of District 11 in Ontario, and play-offs between the two sections will be held on June 25 and June 27 to declare the district winners in eight events. Those people will receive gold, silver and bronze lapel pins supplied by the Ontario Senior Games Committee.

Every second year, provincial competitions are held for the district winners at a two day event known as Actifest. Hamilton has been selected to host the games for 1992. At that time, District 11 will send their gold medalists in the 15 activities to compete with the winners from 32 districts for Olympic-style medals.

The Ontario Senior Games are open to any person who is 55 years of age or older. A small entry fee is charged to help defray expenses at the local level and to cover district and provincial assessments. This year, through the generosity of the four Legion branches at Haliburton, Minden, Kinmount and Wilberforce, a specially designed pin was given to each competitor. It identifies Haliburton County and encourages participation through the theme "Reach the Top". It is encouraging to

Pen pals share lunch at Hyland Crest

After several months of corresponding through letters, pen pals from Hyland Crest senior citizens' home and Archie Stouffer Elementary School met face-to-face over lunch last week.

Since September, students of Bonnie Berry's Grade 5 class have been exchanging letters with residents at Hyland Crest. Last Tuesday, the students visited the home and enjoyed a lunch of barbecued hot dogs and hamburgers with their pen pals. After lunch, the students performed the dances they had learned for the school's performance night.

One of the most boisterous tables at the lunch was occupied by students Meaghan Cox and Kevin Windover and their pen pals Lola Prentice and Lula Ferrill.

Mrs. Ferrill described Meaghan as a "very good letter writer" but would not divulge the contents of their correspondence. "That's a dirty, dark secret between her and I," she joked.

The pair had met before, the Meaghan sometimes visits Mrs. Ferrill to read her the newspaper.

Tuesday was Mrs. Prentice's 87th birthday and Kevin brought his pen pal an orchid corsage. Kevin said he enjoyed learning about Mrs. Prentice's through her letters, and he wrote an essay about her life for the school's public speaking contest.

Linda Fry, the adjutant at Hyland Crest, help organize the letter exchange and she says it has been very successful. "The resident really look forward to receiving the students' letters and the look forward to this barbecue which brings them together," she said.

For those residents who have difficulty with writing, Molly McCarthy, a volunteer with the Ladies Auxiliary, is the home's "ghost writer" who reads the letters to the residents and helps them with write their return letters.

Berry says her class really enjoys writing to the residents and many continue to exchange letters after they leave her class. Not only do the students get to practice their communication skills, they also gain an appreciation for another generation, she says.

"WHERE THE ACTION IS"

Soda Club celebrates successful first year

This month, The Soda Club celebrated its First Anniversary with music, laughter, good times and friendships much enjoyed.

With meetings now held twice a month, the club has grown to have between 35 to 50 regulars plus many visitors. Coming from Minden, Haliburton, Stanhope and surrounding areas, teens hear their favourite music, dance the latest steps, meet the challenges of volleyball, basketball and ping pong matches, laugh to many a joke, share an ice cream soda or chocolate bar, and generally enjoy a fun evening with their soul mates.

Soon after Thelda McGuire moved to this area she saw the desperate need for teen activities and involvements in social activities. Faithfully supported by the Township of Stanhope Recreation Committee and the teens of our area she supervised the start of The Soda Club and its success is proof of its need.

"We gather at 8 p.m. at the Stanhope Firefighters Hall" says Thelda, "and the kids play volleyball, basketball, etc. in the all-purpose pad outdoors, weather permitting. When it starts to get dark we go into the hall where the teens enjoy a variety of activities."

While one of the recreation staff mans the busy snack bar the other staff cruises the hall and supervises the activities and doors.

At 11:00 p.m. after the kids have gone home you can often see Liz and Thelda sweeping the floors while dancing to the music which still rings in their ears from earlier on. We would appreciate the parents coming no later than 11:00 as we too would like to get home. "It takes a lot of patience, understanding and a genuine desire to help the teens," says McGuire. "I only hope we can expand our activities and have more special events in the future."

Liz Timbers, staff member says, "The kids in the area look forward to The Soda Club because it's a place where they can see their friends for a fun evening of supervised freedom."

Thelda and Liz have been the backbone of the club and without their efforts and love of kids the club would not exist. Also thanks go to Rayma Martin, Fern Timbers for all their help. A special thanks to former staff members Becky Durkin and Cheryl McGuire whose constant support was so helpful during our early days.

Thanks to teen Colleen Timbers for supervising our music selections and to Dawn Mole for making sure the kids at school get a P.A. announcement of our upcoming nights.

Also to the Township of Stanhope Council members for their continued support.

The Soda Club Ten Commandments for Kids and Parents:

1. No cigarettes, alcohol or drugs permitted.
2. No going outside during club hours.

Once you go outside the hall you won't be allowed back in.

3. No swearing or fighting allowed in the club and we won't be responsible for you while in all-purpose pad area. All rules still hold.

4. Shirts and shoes to be worn at all times.

5. We insist on smiles, laughter and fun be had by all.

6. Music can be enjoyed but let's not be tone deaf by the end of the evening!

7. All pop cans and goodie packages to be put in garage cans.

8. No telephone calls to be made on pay phone outside. Emergency calls will be granted by staff only.

9. Club hours are 8:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. - please make sure your ride home is here on time.

10. Follow these 10 Commandments and enjoy yourself. Remember it's your club, we want your ideas and your cooperation to make THE SODA CLUB a place you WANT to come to and be proud to be part of.

Parents: Without staff to help during these club nights it would be impossible to carry on. We are looking for a few helpers to assist our staff by volunteering some time - maybe once a month or every 2 months.

Any parent interested please contact Thelda McGuire 489-3028 or Liz Timbers 489-2669.

"Like any family, we have squabbles"

It is one thing to sit in a Chamber Board Meeting on a beautiful day last May and vote for a motion that directors will call on all members in June. It is another thing altogether to suddenly realize that it is the middle of June, and my list of 30 members presents 20-30 hours of visiting time. The task seems enormous and overwhelming. The other day, I decided to get started.

It is an exercise that is long overdue. As I began making my calls, my faith

Chamber News

by Shawn Hagerman

in our Chamber was renewed. We are a large family of business members and like any family sometimes we get along and sometimes we have our squabbles. The businesses I called on that day were not directly related to tourism. However, as I listened to peoples' hopes, dreams, and frustrations, the Chamber emerged as the only forum where the Highland's business community has any voice at the local and provincial level.

Member after member expressed frustration with the attitude of County in reducing the Chamber's grant. Everyone in business realized the importance of promoting the County and everyone expressed dismay how the County had unilaterally broken their commitment to the tourism and promotion agreement. What also came through was their ideas, their enthusiasm and their voluntary donations of cash or services.

The Chamber's roots are strong and after a day of visiting, I do not believe those roots will be broken by this short term crises. This month is a period of soul searching for our Chamber; a period of our board reaching out to members for their advice, help and wisdom. It is truly an experience from which I have gained fresh appreciation of the energy and positive feeling that we as independent businesses still possess. There is also the knowledge that our community will benefit more by working together than apart. Welcome your director when he calls. I am sure that you will both gain by the sharing of your ideas. It is a good time to reflect and lay plans for a better, more responsive Chamber.

A pump is the heart of every cottage

Pumps are the great equalizer. No matter how much design, decor or dinaro has been put into the joint. No matter how many modern conveniences. No matter how snug I've made it. When the pump stops, the world comes crashing down and my castle becomes the lowliest hunt camp.

Realtors should charge one dollar for the building and the other thousands for a good pump. The ads could read: "2000 sq. ft. pump house for sale".

If I sound perturbed, it's because I've survived pump perils. Although it was too near a thing the November that the water stopped. After the usual dickering-about with the pump, which produced the usual no result, yours truly Mr. Pump Expert finally decided that the problem was the foot valve. (The real problem is my case of the terminal cheaps which always prevents me from calling our pump man first.)

I say "our pump man" because I feel a close and proprietary interest in someone to whom I have paid an endless stream of cold cash after all those times I dickered out. He is driving a new van; I still have the same old shakey pump. He claims "they don't make them like this anymore". I think he's bucking for a new mobile home.

And worse, I am still nearer to pump purgatory than pump paradise.

But I digress. Foot valves have a nasty habit of being located under water. In November, under bloody cold water. I borrowed a diver friend's wet suit. So there we were, the wife in the dingy where she "could watch me drown or freeze" and me in the drink.

The wet suit did keep me warm, except for my hands which froze off, but the combined natural

The Intrepid Cottager

by Craig Nicholson

buoyancy of suit and suet kept me bobbing on the bay like a float with a fish on. Only with the aid of a concrete block ballast was I able to clear the foot valve and re-position it to prevent future failures and freezings. Score one for cheapness.

Usually, I don't get wet when the pump packs it in. That's because the main thing wrong is that there is no water. The first time was in the dead of winter. I was fiddling-about and lost the prime. The wife accused me of being past mine. "Never fear," says I, "all I need to prime is water." The wife looked at me as if I'd forgotten the steaks again.

"We can melt snow!" I exclaimed. Do you have any idea how many feet of snow you have to melt to get a cup of water? It's a double digit figure. Well, I scooped, melted and poured, scooped, melted and poured for over an hour, carefully placing each drop of precious fluid into the pump primer hold.

Several gallons later and after snide remarks from the wife about cheapness and how enough water had been poured to shower us all weekend, I came to the conclusion that we had to be filling both the pump and the holding tank. Otherwise, where could all this water be going? "How about back down the line and out into the lake, honey?" said she smartly. Wondering just how much snow I'd have to melt to fill the lake, I called our pump man.

The worst part of pump penance isn't the outlay of cash or the failed dickering. What really gets me is the uncertainty. At odd hours I find myself ambushing a tap or sneaking in for a quick flush—just to confirm that the pump is pumping. When I have water, I hoard it in every conceivable container against the inevitable shortage. The wife says there are so many pans of water around that the neighbours are offering to help re-shingle the roof.

Our pump man even has our key in his pocket and his name embossed coffee mug in our cupboard.

The next summer, the pump perished again. This time I called on everyone around—except the wife who insisted that she wanted a crack at it. With two (male) neighbours, I whiled away a frustrating afternoon and exhausted our collective patience, expertise and beer supply. No pump. No water.

My helpers returned home to their own working bathrooms. Before returning to my outhouse, I trudged upstairs to call our pump man. I smirked to the wife: "Why don't you try it, honey?" By the time I dialed the number and said "hello", the pump had kicked in and the water was flowing. "Just calling to see how you like your new van?" I said, and hung up.

The wife is now our resident pump expert. I am still the village idiot. She maintains, repairs and orders new parts; I handle the wild life, do the driving and forget the steaks. I am the resident hot dog expert.

Oh yes, and I had the locks replaced rather than explain to our former pump man why he should return our key. The name embossed coffee mug was mysteriously broken. The only thing I pump is iron.

"I've always enjoyed this hobby in my spare time."

It's rewarding to start with a block of wood and, after hours of shaping, end up with a decoy. I can never seem to keep any of them, though. I give them away. It's just a special way to show the people I love that I care.

Another way to show others I care is by preplanning my funeral. I recorded my preferences so my family will have written guidelines to follow. And I also prepaid for my funeral plans now to save my family from additional expenses.

And just like my decoys, preplanning is time I consider well spent. They're both symbols of how much I care.

Hosted at Frost Centre

Overseas journalists learn about trapping

When journalists from Italy came to Ontario to learn about the fur industry, the Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre near Dorset was soon recommended as one of the best sources of information.

The six journalists who represented a variety of Italian papers and magazines arrived at the Frost Centre on May 30. Two were from daily newspapers and the others represented fashion and fur publications. The Frost Centre was recommended to them by Bob Barnes, an environmental consultant based in North Bay.

The group listened to a detailed presentation on furbearer management from Mike Buss, Algonquin Regional Wildlife Ecologist. Buss, the former Fish and Wildlife Specialist for the Frost Centre, made it clear that the Ministry of Natural Resources has a very successful furbearer management program. "If there's one success story in how we manage wildlife, it's how we manage fur," he told the journalist how the ministry manages trapping through quotas, targets, regulations, and education. He also explained that the value of wildlife in Ontario is not limited to the value of the fur. There are ecological, biological and cultural benefits that are also derived from healthy wildlife populations.

Buss surprised some of the journalists with the statistics he passed along. For example, he noted that the present level of trapping is not detrimental to the maintenance of healthy furbearer populations. In recent years, he said, close to 200,000 beavers were trapped annually in Ontario. Research shows that healthy beaver populations would continue even if the level of trapping tripled.

Following the presentation, the journalists said they were impressed with the level of attention devoted to natural resources and the environment in Ontario. "I've never seen a country like Canada...with so much attention to a better life," said Luciano Gulli, who was representing Milan's daily Il Giornale. "There's nothing like this in Italy," he said, referring to the Frost Centre. "There is not the same attention to the natural that you have here."

"It's very interesting. The organization and the education...everything is part of a whole," Gulli said. Ontario manages its resources much better than Italy, where everything is departmentalized. "The best way is the way you are pursuing it with this institute," he said, again referring to the Frost Centre. "This way people always know what's going on."

In addition to their stop at the Frost Centre, the journalists had the opportunity to meet with a trapper and to attend a fur auction in North Bay. The group also visited the Hudson's Bay Company and was to meet with a group of native North Americans the following day.

Gulli said he had no preconceptions of whether or not trapping should be encouraged before coming to Ontario. However, after his visit to the Frost Centre, he has come to realize that trapping is necessary to control some animal populations and to provide a living to trappers. In regard to the anti-trapping sentiment, Gulli said it seems to be based on a lot of misconceptions. He said trapping can be carried out without harming animal populations. It can also be useful in limiting the damage from beavers, he said.

Italy is one of the few European countries that still maintains a thriving fur industry. Gulli said the anti-trapping and anti-fur lobbies are not as vocal in Italy as they are in other countries. Although the industry hasn't faced any dramatic declines, Elena Salvaneschi said neither is there any new growth. "The fur trade in Italy is at an equilibrium," said the managing editor of Ultimissime Pellicleria, a monthly trade publication. Others in the groups, however, claimed the anti-fur movement has taken its toll on the industry.

Gulli and Salvaneschi said they were impressed by the amount of knowledge that is readily available from the ministry. "I had some information before coming here," said Gulli, "but I also learned a lot of things about the argument. It is important to discover that trapping is important for native people and that it had a long tradition in Canada."

Salvaneschi said her job demands that she is an expert in the fur industry. Although little of the information was new to her, she found it interesting and the experience helped confirm her beliefs. Meeting face to face with a trapper and those involved in the management of wildlife makes things seem more personal, she said.

Wayne Wilson, the Frost Centre's Fish and Wildlife

Specialist, said he is pleased the group considered the Frost Centre as a source of relevant resource information. Considering the importance of this group, Wilson said he is glad the Frost Centre could contribute.

Wilson said the journalists seemed surprised and pleased with the level of furbearer management in Ontario. They seemed extremely interested in the session and in the surrounding environment. "It's humbling to see how much they appreciate the natural environment...their awe, especially of the lakes."

TSW report

The end of significant rainfalls this week resulted in considerable flow reductions all through the Trent Watershed. Flow of the Otonabee River for instance was cut back from 124 cubic metres per second on Monday to about 22 cubic metres per second by Friday, June 7. Similar flow cuts in Haliburton reduced the Gull flow from about 32 cubic metres per second to 12.8 (summer minimum is 12.7).

The stored water in the Haliburton Lakes averaged 99.7% on Monday, June 3. This was some 5.5% higher than normal, but was down sharply from 104% on May 26. The Kawartha Lakes have some surplus yet to be used before drawing of the stored water would be required.

Acid rain report

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the period of June 3.
June 3, 8 mm rain, 4.4

pH, from northern Ontario.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

Trip included stop at dairy bar for ice cream cones all 'round

This week began Dianna Morris coming at 6 p.m. to read for us. We held it on the back deck. It was much cooler there and we enjoyed it and thank Dianna very much.

Sunday night Chapel Service was held by Rev. John Burgess who is explaining the Gospel of Mark to us. Alice Jones was at the organ and we thank both Rev. Burgess and Alice.

Monday, about ten, Doris returned and everyone was glad to see her and she started right in to work.

Since it was the first Monday we had Residents' Council. There was a good group attended. Llyn Shirley, Dietary Director, was present to answer questions and Marsha Thomas, Nursing Director, told us we could be sure she would listen and endeavour to solve our problems. We had a very good meeting and thank all who attended.

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

In the evening Ena Marion and Ruth Rice showed two films in the auditorium. They were both very good. One was "Indonesia - East of Bali" and "Grouse Country". Thank you Ena and Ruth.

Tuesday Chapel Service was conducted by Rev. Brian Parker who also had a Communion Service. The residents wish to thank him sincerely.

Wednesday morning we were ready to board the bus about 10:30 on our way to Union Creek Restaurant for lunch. Jack and Ruth Foster went to help the residents as well as entertain us with guitar music and singing in the bus. We also had Rose Smith, Jean Robson and Dianna Morris. We had a lovely lunch as well as stopping at Kawartha Dairy on our way home. Thank you everyone who gave us a lovely outing.

That evening Pastor Murray held a service in the Chapel. Thanks Pastor Murray and helpers.

Thursday was our tea party. The seniors and Shuffleboard ladies from Minden served us with a delicious tea which we enjoyed very much. Nicholas Rhodes, son of Dr. and Mrs. Rhodes, played the piano during the tea. He played beautifully and we are sure his parents are proud of him.

Thursday was my birthday. I went to Haliburton for the evening with Terry and Norma, May and Cameron, Jacqueline Yate-man and Hilda LaRue. I thank them very much.

The bingo was held Thursday evening conducted by Marg Prentice and Shirley Howe, we thank them very much.

June 7th was Happy Hour in the auditorium and the entertainment was by Mike and Connie Biagi and Frank Faulkner with Doris playing the piano. Volunteers were Don Holden, Mary Guillemine, Jankie Thomas, Dorothy Milne and Bonnie Fullan. Thanks to all who took part.

Rheta Jones has returned after a wonderful vacation.

Scientists work under a great deal of pressure

In mid-March, one of the leading scientists in the world, Nobel laureate and Rockefeller University President, David Baltimore, finally agreed to retract a paper on which he was a co-author.

Ever since 1986 when allegations of fraud had been raised over the article, Baltimore had vigorously defended the work and attacked critics as a threat to science and scientific freedom.

While his well-deserved reputation in molecular biology remains intact, Baltimore's public humiliation raises some uncomfortable facts about the tawdry side of high pressure, big science.

It is unfair to scientists for the public to expect them to carry out their research objectively and openly, without emotions. Scientists, after all, are no different from any other group of human beings. Their intense commitment to research and the joy of discovery and speculation make science an exhilarating personal and emotional enterprise. But it also brings out the full panoply of ambition, fears, jealousy, avarice and stupidity.

Scientists operate under a poorly defined honor code that simply assumes researchers don't cheat because fraudulent data will soon be detected by others trying to replicate the experiments.

Budding scientists are not formally instructed about the temptations to cook data, the role of whistle blowing when fraud is discovered or agreement to a universal code of ethics. Instead, they stumble through an ethical mine field unprepared and unaided.

Ever since the atomic bomb, big science has been a central part of national defence. Japan's success is applying discoveries in basic science for economic return has pushed research into a pivotal

by David Suzuki

role in the economy.

This has been a mixed blessing for the scientific community—massive new monies have been injected into research but the demand for military or economic payoffs has brought secrecy, cutthroat competition and the lure of vast individual profit into the practice of science.

An established scientist too often becomes so heavily involved in administration, committee work and lecture tours that there is little time to do the research on which his/her reputation was established. A new recipient of a PhD, on the other hand, must establish a track record in order to get a job. So a kind of mutually beneficial parasitism has developed between the established scientist and a postdoctoral fellow (PDF) or young professor. The latter derive support, lab facilities and prestige by working for the former. In return, the starting scientist's work enhances the reputation of the person in whose lab the work is done.

This creates problems. A young professor at the University of North Carolina told me about working as one of over 20 PDFs in the lab of a very famous scientist at Cal Tech. His boss was so busy that in three years in the lab the PDF never had a discussion with him about his work even though they published several papers together.

The more famous the scientist, the bigger the research group and PDFs can become cogs in a machine to crank out work that the boss needs but has little time to oversee.

There is enormous pressure on PDFs to keep coming up with work to enhance the reputations of both the lab head and themselves. One of the best students I ever encountered in a class graduated from UBC with a PhD in biochemistry and went as a PDF to the lab of an eminent molecular biologist at Columbia University.

When he failed to do experiments that gave publishable data within a few weeks, he was kicked out of the lab and never lived up to his promise. It's hardly surprising then that under that kind of pressure, PDFs fudge data.

In the '70s, I received a call from a PDF working in the lab of a famous Canadian scientist. He told that he had discovered that one of his fellow PDFs was making up results but the head of the lab wouldn't believe him and threatened to ruin his career. I'm not proud of the fact that I didn't pursue the lead because I didn't want to tarnish the reputation of a scientist for whom I had high regard. The story was eventually documented by Beth Savan in the radio series, IDEAS, and in her book, SCIENCE UNDER SIEGE (CBC Enterprises).

This is the negative aspect of the high stakes in big science. It's the very human side of science that does not in any way denigrate the profession. But instead of trying to hush up stories like the Baltimore affair, scientists and the public should try to learn from them and establish mechanisms that will protect scientific freedom while ensuring a high standard of ethics.

Coming out of our shell

The time has come for us to wave our flag... blow our horn... come out of our shell. Time to summon the power of the Community Press and put it to work delivering your messages as only we can - directly into the communities you represent.

The latest P.M.B. results have found:

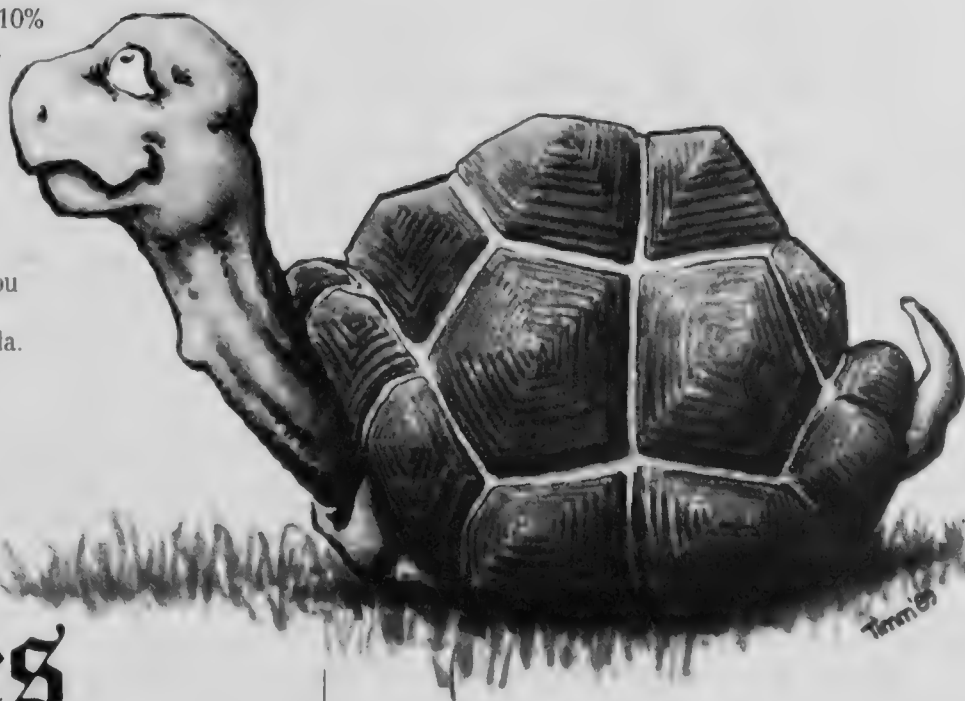

- 8,743,000 adults in English Canada read a community paper in the last 7 days.

- A "Readership to Possession Ratio" of 97% (95% in urban centres)
- Average issue is picked up 2.4 times.
- We can reach 39% of the adult population who are not exposed to the average daily (44% in urban markets)

In fact, one National Daily Newspaper buy plus one National Community Press

buy will provide a more cost-efficient reach with a 10% higher net coverage than a 4-insertion National Daily Newspaper Campaign.

That's a lot of clout and the reason we're coming out of our shell. Call your local advertising representative today and find out how we can put you in touch with your community, or all of Canada.
